

FROM MEXICO.

The French have occupied Chihuahua. Juarez and his Cabinet have fled to El Paso, which is at present the headquarters of the Mexican Government.

The indications are that Juarez will soon be driven from this last foothold on Mexican soil, and become a fugitive within the borders of the United States.

The Times' Brownsville correspondence of August 26, says the Matamoros Monitor of the preceding week announced the arrival of Beauregard at Vera Cruz.

The Liberals on the border are quiet but are recruiting.

The troops mustered out under the late order of Sheridan have nearly all gone home, but a large force still remains at Brownsville and in the interior of Texas.

At a grand ball on the night of the 24th, given in honor of Maximilian, it was attended by General Steele, who toasted the Emperor.

In an order recently issued by Gen. Slocum, commanding the Department of Mississippi, in connection with the trial by military commission, the General publishes the following communication from Secretary Stanton to that Department upon the subject:

"The State of Mississippi, in common with other insurgent States, is still in the occupation of our forces, and, embraced as it is in a military department, is still to a very considerable extent under the control of the military authorities. Moreover, the rebellion, although physically crushed, has not been officially announced, or treated either directly or indirectly as a thing of the past. Suspension of the habeas corpus has not been terminated, nor has military law ceased to be enforced, in proper cases, through the agency of military courts and military commanders, in all parts of the country."

The Philadelphia Press says that the rain storm of Monday in that city was exceedingly heavy. Chestnut street was like a lake of water; in many places the aqueous element being over the curbstone. The water rushed through the basement windows of the Continental and Girard House to so great an extent as to extinguish the fires in the engine-rooms. The water was at least seven feet deep in a portion of the basement of the Continental.
